VDOT Closes Piggott Bottom Road Bridge

Dear Catoctin residents,

On Thursday, March 24, VDOT closed the Piggott Bottom Road bridge over Catoctin Creek. They explained this was an emergency closure, which they did after seeing the results of the latest safety inspection. This bridge was originally scheduled to be closed and repaired this summer.

As of right now, drivers who need to reach properties along Piggott Bottom Road will be able to access them, but traffic won't be able to go beyond the point of the bridge in either direction. Through traffic will be detoured via Berlin Turnpike (Route 287), Leesburg Pike (Route 7), and Hamilton Station Road (Route 704). I've included VDOT's map of the detour below.

You can see VDOT’s original press release on the bridge closing here, and get more details about the bridge itself at the VDOT project page here.

If you have more questions for VDOT about the bridge closure, the press release lists Ellen Kamilakis as their preferred contact. You can reach her at ellen.kamilakis@vdot.virginia.gov.

Sincerely,

Supervisor Caleb A. Kershner
