Small Business Week in Loudoun County!

This week is Small Business Week! Partnering with the Department of Economic Development, my office highlighted two small businesses in the community with recognition of their work to support the local economy. The Department of Economic Development also kicked off an exciting new initiative called Launch Loudoun to help our many local small businesses thrive.

If you have any suggestions for Algonkian District small businesses to highlight in the future, please reach out to my office!

Launch Loudoun

Unveiled at a Press Conference on Monday, Launch Loudoun is a program spearheaded by the Department of Economic Development that provides experiences and services for Loudoun entrepreneurs through the full lifecycle of their business. Based on feedback gathered during the pandemic, this program will help close the gaps in services supporting women and minority-owned businesses.

I was thrilled to speak at the press conference to present this program. I commend the bravery of anyone willing to take risks to start a business.

Remnants of Magic Visit

I kicked off Small Business Week with a visit to Remnants of Magic in Sterling on Monday! They opened up their doors in 2021 and specialize in ethically sourced crystals, jewelry, and spiritual products for all faiths. Their owners and staff were extremely kind and knowledgeable of their many diverse products. We are excited to have them in Algonkian.

Local Provisions Visit

Today, I visited with Chair Randall to the great new addition to the Cascades Marketplace, Local Provisions! Co-owners Michael and Ally Stebner live right here in Cascades. Their restaurant recently received a stellar review from the Washington Post. Thank you to the whole staff for building an incredible new restaurant destination for Loudoun County.
